

DIRECTOR, TEACHING & LEARNING

Reporting to the Vice President Academic & Provost, the Director of Teaching & Learning is a leader who contributes to transformational learning and excellence in teaching aligned with the purpose and values of the university. The director is responsible for leadership in the work of growing, developing and evolving the strategic directions of faculty teaching and learning programs and services, digital learning, and open education in support of student success. Working strategically with the university and academic plans, the role provides senior level direction and operational activities in support of the scholarship of teaching and learning, curriculum (re)design and assessment of learning, interdisciplinarity in teaching, and academic integrity. Advancing Indigenization, internationalization and a range of decolonizing approaches in teaching and learning collaboratively with a variety of university constituents is also part of this role.

Through collaborative and facilitative approaches, the director fosters, supports and leads teaching and learning initiatives that promote inclusive learning environments, attitudes, and actions, and advance equity in educational experiences.

Capilano University is named after Chief Joe Capilano, an important leader of the Skwxwú7mesh (Squamish) Nation of the Coast Salish Peoples. The University respectfully acknowledges that campuses and learning locations are located on the unceded territories of the Líl'wat, xʷməθkʷəy̓əm (Musqueam), shíshálh (Sechelt), Skwxwú7mesh (Squamish) and Səlilwətaʔ/Selilwitulh (Tseil-Waututh) Nations.

Capilano University is well known for providing a strong academic foundation as well as being committed to developing new and innovative programs positioned for the future. Programming at the university, through its five Faculties include preparatory courses, arts and sciences, business and management studies, creative and applied arts, health and human development, tourism, kinesiology, legal studies, public administration, plus a suite of important services in support of student learning and success. Credentials awarded include bachelor degrees, associate degrees, post-baccalaureate diplomas, advanced diplomas, certificates and citations.

The main campus in North Vancouver is only 20 minutes from downtown Vancouver. It is nestled in the forest on the slopes of the North Shore mountains, and the beauty of the campus and the high quality of education attract students from around the world. Capilano University has a regional campus in Sechelt that serves the Sunshine Coast. In partnership with the Líl'wat Nation, Capilano offers programming with Líl'wat members and other indigenous peoples through the T̓szil Learning Centre in Mount Currie. Recently opened CapU Lonsdale, is a learning location that houses continuing studies and a range of courses centered in place-based and community-engaged learning given its location in the North Vancouver Shipyards district. Capilano University enrolls approximately 11,600 students each year, 8,300 in for-credit programs and 3,300 in non-credit courses.
