

Dean, Faculty of Business Administration

Reporting to the Provost and Vice-President Academic at the University of Regina, the Dean, Faculty of Business Administration provides overall leadership and management of both the Paul J. Hill School of Business and the Kenneth Levene Graduate School of Business housed in the Faculty.

With a collaborative and collegial approach, and experience in fostering a diverse, equitable and inclusive community, the new Dean will create a shared vision and strategic direction that advances entrepreneurial and innovation-related initiatives, builds strong relationships with the community and industry, and empowers graduates to become business leaders and agents of positive change.

The successful candidate will work with the Faculty to strengthen existing interdisciplinary research, produce market-driven academic programs, and ensure a highly engaging and rewarding student experience. The ideal candidate may come from an academic, government and/or business background with senior leadership, administrative and financial management experience from a similarly complex, unionized environment. A graduate degree in a related discipline is required, with preference for PhD or equivalent. Qualified candidates will bring experience in implementing a sustained competitive advantage to steward advancement in enrollment, curricula, scholarship, and innovation that is rooted in an understanding of contemporary developments and trends of business education.
